

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to an electronic equipment permitted to undergo operation control on the basis of timer reservation by user, and the electronic equipment comprises a setting section for setting time designated by user, an operation control section for controlling the operation of the electronic equipment in accordance with time set by the setting section, a display section for displaying operation portion for operating the electronic equipment, a display control section such that when the electronic equipment is operative in accordance with the operation control section, it controls the display section so that specific display is carried out on the display section, and a designation detecting section for detecting designation of user with respect to the specific display, whereby when designation of user is detected by the designation detecting section, the operation control section conduct such a control to neglect time set by the setting section and to continue the operation of the electronic equipment when designation of user is detected.